PLANS TO PROSECUTE AUTOISTS OPERATING UNDER 1916 LICENSES

Chief Champion Warns Machine Owners the Sport Not to Be Tolerated Without This Year's Permits.

The Janesville automobile owners operating machines under 1916 licenses are liable to prosecution unless they are secured, Chief of Police P. D. Champion announced today. The warning comes as the result of the observations of the police head and of the numbers of his department and the realization that a good percentage of local autoists have failed after three months to secure the state permits for this year.

Chief Champion also has something to say regarding the operating of private automobiles with dealers' tags. In the middle of December last year it was suddenly discovered that there was a large number of private cars in the city which bore the star license plates. One firm operated three delivery cars with this discovery a sharp lookout was kept and it was found that there were numerous other cars following out the same line.

Once the scheme foiled the department, but it won't again, the chief said. "We will keep close watch this season and see that all private machines are properly licensed."

Mr. Sheldon is well known as a writer, his most famous book being "In His Steps." He is a "live wire" and his address is free and the public is cordially invited.

PROPERTY OWNERS ARE PLEASED WITH PLANS FOR STREETS

Attend Hearing of Board of Public Works Yesterday and Find Favorable Action Taken By the City.

After two hours of explanation, statements and figures a group of taxpayers and property owners which met at the city hall yesterday, found the plans for the street paving schedule this season. Half antagonistic at first, the hearing shortly developed into one of the most cordially presented to them.

The board plans to advertise for bids immediately, for brick on South Bluff street, between Milwaukee and Court streets, for at least two years, but left without any definite action being taken on the postponement, after it was shown that the cost this season was no more than fair for that this should be considered financially this year.

Mr. Myers and Mr. Brewer desired to postpone the work on South Bluff street, between Milwaukee and Court streets, for at least two years, but left without any definite action being taken on the postponement, after it was shown that the cost this season was no more than fair for that this should be considered financially this year.

Brick is not keeping pace with war price advances of other lines, it was explained, but labor is, and it was the opinion that the future will see the laborer demanding even more money per day than at the present time. No representations of property on South Franklin street, between Milwaukee and Pleasant streets, were at the hearing.

OUT OF TOWN DATE MAY BE ARRANGED

Invitations Received From Evansville, Monroe and Beloit to Present "The Parish Priest."

The excellence of the dramatic production presented at Myers Theatre on Sunday by a home talent cast in "The Parish Priest," has attracted the attention of the Hibernal societies, has brought invitations from Beloit, Evansville and Monroe to repeat the play. It is considered possible that the cast may conclude to arrange for an out of town date.

The introduction of several specialties afforded the audience much satisfaction, and the singing of Mrs. Hoffman of "Benedictine Stream" was well received. She responded to several encores with a song, "Mollie Mine." The latter song is the popular hit now being sung by Miss O'Grady in his latest play, "His Heart's Desire," and its catchy little Irish lilt is most pleasing.

TRAMP ROUTED BY DETERMINED WOMAN

It took a prominent Center avenue lady but a few minutes to rout a surly insolent tramp who attempted to force his way into the rear door of her home last evening and demanded the gas bill. So quickly was he attacked that he took with him part of the panes of a glass door and disappeared in two minutes. The police were later notified and searched the railway yards for some hours, but failed to apprehend the intruder. It is safe to say that this one house will have the sign of "be ware" in the average "hobo's" list from now on.

Specials at the Boot Shop tonight.

Everyday Wisdom By DON HEROLD

I DON'T QUITE GET THIS—I DON'T SEE HOW TO START

HOW TO GET RICH

If you work in a store, you will never get rich unless you have some side lines. You should have some railroad stock, a good farm, and a few other things. The greatest secret of wealth is to have a lot of eggs in a lot of baskets. A man who tries to make a lot of money out of one thing, like working in a store or keeping books, will never succeed. We have been analyzing rich men lately and have observed one thing pretty generally true about all of them: they have a great many interests. The trouble with a lot of us poorer folks is that we concentrate too much. We should get stock in a lot of different enterprises—fertilizer factories, poultry farms, banks, moving picture theaters, piano factories, oil works, oil refineries, taxi cab companies, etc. We should pick up real estate here and there about town—business blocks, hotels, theaters, and tenements.

Consider the rich men of your own acquaintance. Not many of them, we imagine, have made their fortune out of one thing. Then what is the logical conclusion? Multiplicity of interests. This is a great idea for the ambitious poor—a very great discovery—and we, for one, are going to start tomorrow to put it into practice. We have been plugging along trying to make a living too, too long. Tomorrow we are going to broaden out, and take up fifteen or twenty new propositions. This is the method of the rich.

ENGLAND WILL PUSH CLOCK AHEAD EASTER

Special to THE GAZETTE.
London, March 21.—A committee appointed to inquire into the social and economic results of setting the clock ahead one hour last summer so as to have an hour of daylight has decided to recommend its continuance until this year on Easter Sunday, April 8, and keep it up until Sunday, September 24.
The committee will probably be reinforced by an order in council, as it is not necessary to have a fresh act of parliament.
The daylight saving went into effect on May 21 last year. The change caused a great inconvenience and the return to winter time at the end of summer was made so easy that the experiment was pronounced a success.
The committee appointed to discover the beneficial effects of the daylight saving scheme has not yet submitted its findings.

ELEGANCE

Like the highest priced cars on the market, Studebaker retains its beautifully distinctive lines, without faddish or freakish change. Simplicity and dignified elements have been perfected in the Studebaker body owing to the constant refining and perfecting of good basic lines.

The lines are long, clean and sweeping. There is not a single thing to interfere with the smooth continuous flow of the Studebaker body, from the tip of the radiator to the rear of tonneau.

One of the first things you will notice when you come in to see the Series 18 Studebaker is its rare elegance of finish. And the strikingly original gun-metal gray finish of the Studebaker will always look rich and new. Twenty-five separate paint and varnish operations insure its permanency.

News Notes from Movieland

—BY DAISY DEAN—

As an old peasant woman, "Charlotte" dwelling with her two sons in the little village to which war has come and beckons away all of the stalwart men with its bloody fingers, Anne Sutherland, the noted character woman of the stage and screen, makes one of the most vividly pathetic figures in all that strong drama of war
featuring Marjorie Rambeau, "Motherhood," soon to be released of this old woman who, bound both hand and foot, is required to watch the death of her son at the point of the bayonet and the mistreating of a friend who has taken her in to her house by the enemy's soldiers, loses her mind and becomes a helpless, senseless drone, is wonderful in its realism. In it, Miss Sutherland gives her mastery of the intricacies of makeup and of her ability to immense her own personality into the sorrowful figure which she depicts.

There were others. Successful
Sydney Ainsworth, successful movie actor and amateur slight-of-hand performer, gave a demonstration in a restaurant to amuse a party of friends. He made a half dollar disappear from the palm of his hand into the air. Then he discovered it in the neck of a towel being served at an adjoining table.

But evidently the amusing Mr.
Ainsworth wasn't the only slight-of-hand artist in the restaurant.
When I got out he reports, "I found somebody had my pocketbook disappear, with $130."

If you were to spend the day with William Farnum you would: Arise at 6:30 and take a cold shower.
Take a tramp across the mountains,
followed by another shower and a light breakfast. By 8 be speeding to the studio. Be made up by 8:30.
Work until noon. Lunch on a cup of tea and a cigar. Work until 6. Eat dinner. Spend the evening either attending prizefights or reading scan-arios.

Dr. Percy Norman Williams of
New York, addressing the Maryland Dental society of Maryland, said perheads are those of Shirley Mason and George Le Guere. These two are starred in a movie series called "The Seven Deadly Sins."

Columbus is to discover America auspices of the government of Spain.

EVANSVILLE TO INSTALL CO-OPERATIVE DELIVERY

Evansville, March 21.—It became

When Judy Abbott Meets Her

The most delightful of Miss Jean moments of the play that is to be Here is the letter in the book,

were one and the same man.

that marks the horizon. Then the sheik turns and faces the orb of day.
With a magnificent gesture, full of wild, free grace of the savage, he throws up his arms in greeting to the sun and stands there, rapt and admiring, as the curtain falls.

With this brief scene the atmosphere of the desert is subtly given to everyone. The audience has been put in tune with the story—gripped with the fascination and mystery of the desert—and from that time on is held breathless in the spell of a poignant and heart searching interest.

"SAVE THE BABIES."
These are authentic quotations from the pamphlet on babies by Dr. L. Emmett Holt of Columbia and Dr. Henry L.
Shaw of Union University.

To avoid infection keep the baby's room free from soiled clothes and rubbish. Don't let the baby play with cats and dogs. They carry disease to babies. Do not let the baby crawl around on a dirty floor or a dirty carpet. Place him on a clean sheet or blanket. More of this tomorrow.

you have not read ALL the news.

"I'm going to see Daddy Long-Legs. I'm going to see Daddy Long-Legs."

"Then presently the man came back and asked me please to step up to the library. I was so excited that I didn't really and truly know what I was doing. Outside the door he took me and whispered, 'He's been very ill Miss. This is the first day he's been allowed to sit up. You'll not stay long enough to excite him?'
I knew from the way he said it that he loved you—and I think he's an old dear!"

"Then he knocked and said, 'Miss Abbott, and I went in and the door closed behind me."

"It was so dim coming in from the brightly lighted hall that for a moment I could scarcely make out anything. Then I saw a big, easy chair before the fire and a shining table with a small chair beside
it. And I realized that a man was sitting in the big chair, propped up by pillows, with a rug over his knees.
But before I could stop him, he rose —sort of shakily—and steadied himself by the back of the chair and just looked at me without a word. And then—and then—I drew it was you!
And even then I didn't understand.
Then you laughed and held out your hand and said, 'Dear little Judy, could you guess that I was Daddy Long-Legs?'"

"In an instant it flashed over me.
Oh, but I have been stupid! I had dread little things might have told me if I had had any wit. I wouldn't make a good detective. I wouldn't daddy."

"We belong to each other now, really and truly; no make-believe.
Doesn't it seem queer to me to belong to 'you' one last? It seems very, very sweet."

"And I shall never let you be sorry
for a single instant."

"Yours forever and ever."

"Judy."

P. S.—"This is the first love letter
I ever wrote. Isn't it funny that I know how?"

MYERS THEATRE.

"The Garden of Allah."

A new epoch in things theatrical will begin for theatre-goers of Janesville when the great Liebler production "The Garden of Allah" opens at the Myers Theatre on Saturday, March 24th for a limited engagement of matinee and evening.

It is a dramatization of the famous Highways novel, by himself, assisted by Mary Anderson de Navarro.

In this superb production modern enterprise and invention have reached their ultimate. The various scenes in the places of Northern Africa, in which the powerful and clutching story takes place, will be not only of the most thrilling and marvelous beauty, but a series of moments in their magic-working effects.

The opening scene shows the desert
—a vast solitude, stretching away in an limitless perspective of shifting sand-heaps and over the sky, a splendid dome of fleecy blue, with a great jewel on the far horizon. Then a distant shout is heard and there comes a caravan of camels, a herd of horses and men, and finally a cavalry, driven by little children.

This picturesque procession defies across the waste of sand in vicious disorder, each figure sharply silhouetted against the sky, now beginning flush with the warmth of the coming sun. Then they disappear and there comes a solitary camel, a huge creature, ridden by the sheik himself. Just as he does so, the crimson rim of the rising sun appears above the waving line of sand

rived in Brazil.

According to the story told by Sen.
Oliveira Castro, the Brazilian government's agent sent to employ the experts he had extreme difficulty in finding men willing to go to Brazil because of the prevailing idea in the United States that revolutions were matters of daily occurrence.

After a great deal of effort and repeated assurances that revolutions took place only in the story books and not in actual Brazilian life, he induced Professors O. T. Clawson, H. H. Carnell, W. C. Johnson, J. E. Blohm, E.
Pittman, R. H. Cook, Maurice Blohm,
Dr. K. E. Quantz and Dr. B. T. Harve to leave with him on the steamer
"Minas Geraes."

When the "Minas Geraes" arrived in Pernambuco, the first Brazilian port, and as she hauled up to the docks there was the sound of rifle firing from within the city. There was great curiosity on board the ship, particularly among the Americans, as to what the disturbance meant. A venturesome ship's officer brought back the news that a revolution was in progress. It turned out later that it was a mere celebration over a minor election and nobody was hurt.

But, as Sen. Castro expressed it,
"The Americans clapped their hands and were saying, 'This is the land of the future!'"

They arrived safely in Rio de Janeiro and are busy showing the Agricultural department new stunts in fruit, grain, tobacco and other kinds of culture.

As Dave changed into his service clothes he was surprised to feel a new vigor in his limbs and a new strength of purpose in his mind. When he stood in his old boots and felt the familiar drag of his cartridge-belt, when he tested his free muscles, he realized that he was another man. Even yet he could not put much faith in Phil Strange's words—nevertheless, there might be a danger threatening Alaire; and if so, it was time to act.

Phil watched his friend saddle the bay mare, then as Dave tied his rifle scabbard to its thigh he laughed nervously.

"You're loaded for bear."

The horseman answered, grimly: "I'm loaded for Jose Sanchez. If I lay hands on him I'll learn what he knows."

"You can't get nothing out of a Mexican."

"No? I've made Filipinos talk. Believe me, I can be some persuasive when I try." With that he swung a leg over Montross's back and rode away.

CHAPTER XVIII.

A Surprise.

Law found it good to feel a horse between his knees. He had not realized until now how long Montross's saddle had been empty. The sun was hot and friendly, the breeze was sweet in his nostrils as he swept past the smiling fields and out into the mesquite country. Hear waves danced above the patches of bare ground; insects sang noisily from every side; far ahead the road ran a wavering course through a deceitful mirage of rippling ponds. It was all familiar, pleasant; it was home. With every mile he covered his strength and courage increased.

Such changes had come into his life since his last visit to Las Palmas that it gave him a feeling of unreality to discover no alteration in the ranch. He had somehow felt that the buildings would look older, that the trees would have grown taller, and so when he finally came in sight of his destination he reined in to look.

Behind him he heard the hum of an approaching motor, and he turned to behold a car racing along the road he had just traveled. The machine was running fast, as a long streamer of choking dust gave evidence, and Dave soon recognized it as belonging to Jonesville's prosecuting attorney. As it tore past him its owner shouted something, but the words were lost. In the automobile with the driver were several passengers, and one of these likewise called to Dave and seemed to motion him to follow. When the machine slowed down a half-mile ahead and veered abruptly into the Las Palmas gateway, Dave lifted Montross to a run, wondering what pressing necessity could have induced the prosecuting attorney to risk such a reckless burst of speed.

Dave told himself that he was unduly apprehensive; that Strange's warnings had worked upon his nerves. Nevertheless, he continued to ride so hard that almost before the dust had settled he, too, turned into the shade of the palms.

Yes, there was excitement here; something was evidently very much amiss. Judging from the groups of ranch-hands assembled upon the porch. They were clustered about the doors and windows, peering in. Briefly they turned their faces toward Law; then they crowded closer, and he perceived that they were not talking. Some of them had removed their hats and held them in their hands.

Dave's knees shook under him as he dismounted; for one sick, giddy instant the scene swam before his eyes; then he ran toward the house and up the steps. He tried to frame a question, but his lips were stiff with fright. Headless of those in his path, he forced his way into the house, then down the hall toward an open door, through which he saw a room full of people. From somewhere came the shrill wailing of a woman; the house was full of hushed voices and whisperings. Dave had but one thought. From the depths of his being a voice called Alaire's name until his brain rang with it.

A bed was in the room, and around it was gathered a group of white-faced people. With rough hands Law cleared a way for himself, and then stopped, frozen in his tracks. His arms relaxed, his fingers unclenched, a great sigh whistled from his lungs. Before him, hooted, spurred, and fully dressed, lay the dead body of Ed Austin.

Dave Stood Staring at the Master of Las Palmas.

Dave was still staring at the master of Las Palmas when the prosecuting attorney spoke to him.

"God! This is terrible, isn't it?" he said. "He must have died instantly."

"Who—did it?"

"We don't know yet. Benito found him and brought him in. He hasn't been dead an hour."

Law ran his eyes over the room, and then asked, sharply, "Where is Mrs. Austin?"

He was answered by Benito Gonzalez, who had edged closer. "She's not here, senor."

"Have you notified her?"

Benito shrugged. "There has been no time, it all happened so quickly—"

Someone interrupted, and Dave saw that it was the local sheriff—evidently it was he who had waved from the speeding machine a few moments before.

"I'm glad you're here, Dave, for you can give me a hand. I'm going to round up these Mexicans right away and find out what they know. Whoever did it hasn't gone far; so you act as my deputy and see what you can learn."

When Dave had gained better control of himself he took Benito outdoors and demanded full details of the tragedy. With many lamentations and incoherencies the range boss told what he knew.

Ed had met his death within a half-mile of Las Palmas as he rode home for dinner. Benito, himself on his way to the house, had found the body, still warm, near the edge of the pecan grove. He had retained enough sense to telephone at once to Jonesville, and then—Benito hardly knew what he had done since then, he was so badly shaken by the tragedy.

"What time did it happen?"

"It was noon when I came in."

Dave consulted his watch, and was surprised to discover that it was now only a few minutes past one. It was evident, therefore, that Benito had indeed lost no time, and that his alarm had met with instant response.

"Now tell me, who did it?"

Benito hung his hands high. "God knows! Some enemy, of course; but Don Eduardo had many."

"Not that sort of enemies. There was nobody who could wish to kill him."

"That is as it is."

"Haven't you any suspicions?"

"No, senor."

"You say Mrs. Austin is gone?"

"Yes."

"Where?"

"I don't know."

Dave spoke brusquely: "Come, Benito; you must know, for your wife went with her. Are you trying to keep something back?"

"No, no. As God is my judge!" Benito declared. "I didn't know they were going until the very last, and even then Dolores would tell me nothing. We were having bad times here at Las Palmas; there were stormy scenes yonder in the house. Senor Ed was drinking again, you understand? The senora had reason to go."

"You think she ran away to escape him?"

"Exactly."

Dave breathed more easily, for this seemed to settle Strange's theory. The next instant, however, his apprehensions were doubled, for Benito added: "No doubt she went to La Feria."

Law uttered an incredulous exclamation. "Not there! Surely she wouldn't go to La Feria at such a time. Why, that country is ablaze. Americans are fleeing from Mexico."

"I hadn't thought of that," Benito confessed. "But if she didn't go there, where did she go? Saints above! It is a fine condition of affairs when a wife keeps secrets from her husband, eh? I suppose Dolores feared I would tell Don Eduardo. God rest his soul! This much I do know, however: not long ago there came a letter from General Longorio, offering settlement for those cattle he stole in his government's name. Dolores told me the senora was highly pleased and was going to Mexico for her money. It was a mark of Longorio's favor, you understand me? He's a great—friend, an ardent admirer." Benito winked. "Dolores told me all about that, too. No, I think they went to La Feria."

Dave remembered his first conversation with Phil Strange and the fortune-teller's insistence that some powerful person was behind Jose Sanchez. More than three weeks ago Strange had forecast something very like this murder of Ed Austin. Dave felt as if he were the victim of an hysterical imagination. Nevertheless, he forced himself to ask, quietly:

"Is Jose Sanchez anywhere about?"

The range boss shrugged. "I sent him to the east pasture this morning."

"Did he go?"

"Eh? So? You suspect Jose of this, God in heaven! Jose is a wild boy—"

But wait! I'll ask Juan if he saw him; yes, and Victoria, too. That is Victoria you hear squalling in the kitchen. Wait here."

Benito hurried away, leaving Dave a prey to perplexity; but he was back again in a few moments. His face was grave.

"Jose did not go to the east pasture," he said.

"Where is he now?"

"No one seems to know."

Law walked to his horse, mounted, and galloped away. Benito, who watched him, saw that he turned toward the river road which led to the Las Palmas pumping plant.

The Health Habit

(By Dr. L. C. Bowers.)

The late Elbert Hubbard once said: "Most people go thru life on a short allowance of good air and oxygen and too much food. Life is combustion. The digestive tract is the boiler. The value of exercise in the open air lies in the fact of getting a goodly draft of oxygen thru your system and this forced draft is both eliminating refuse and burning up slag."

Breathe deeply when in the open air. Sleep in a room with windows open wide. Drink six or eight glasses of pure water daily, and keep within doors during the cold months, which has eaten and drunk things which he should not, if he or she has overworked in stale air, that person needs a general tonic and housecleaning. Especially is this so at this time of the year. For a tonic that will freshen up the blood, clean the digestive tract and put new force and vim into you, I know of nothing better than an alternative extract with glycerine, made from Golden Seal root, Oregon Grape root, Blood root, Stone root and Queen's root—and it contains no alcohol or narcotic so is perfectly safe to take.

This tonic has been sold for nearly fifty years in the form of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It can be had now in tablet as well as liquid form at most drug stores.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead, when your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night, when you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, ask your druggist for Anuric, double strength. I have found in practice that Anuric is more potent than lithia and in most cases it will dissolve the uric acid as hot water does sugar.—Advertisement.

Dinner Stories

Henry's wife is musical. Occasionally she drags Henry with her to a concert. The other night it was to hear a famous Russian quartet. When the program was about half finished she whispered:

"Henry, you must admit it is wonderful. Why, those men have been playing together for eight years."

A look of incredulity relieved the carved-in-stone expression on Henry's face.

"Eight years?" he repeated. "Surely we've been here longer than that!"

A Philadelphia divine was entertaining a couple of clergymen from New York at dinner. The guests spoke in praise of a sermon the host had delivered the Sunday before.

The host's son was at the table and one of the New York clergymen said to him:

"My lad, what did you think of your father's sermon?"

"I guess it was very good," said the boy, "but there were three mighty fine places where he could have stopped."

"I once wrote on a blackboard," says a Philadelphia teacher. "These words: 'That toast was drunk in silence,' and then asked my class, 'Can any one tell me what the mistake in any sentence is?'"

"The pupils pondered. Then a little girl said up her hand, and at a nod from me went to the board and wrote the following correction: 'The toast was ate in silence.'"

The parishioner had confided to the rector his exact opinion of the man next door.

"But we are commanded to love our neighbors as ourselves," answered the vicar gently. "Maybe so," was the retort. "But when that command was given neighbors lived further off than the other side of the fence."

ELECTION NOTICE

OFFICE OF COUNTY CLERK, March 21, 1917.

TO THE ELECTORS OF ROCK COUNTY:

Notice is hereby given that a judicial state and county superintendent of schools election is to be held in the several towns, wards and election precincts in the County of Rock, on the 3rd day of April, 1917, at which the officers named below are to be chosen. The name of the candidate for each office to be voted for, whose nomination has been certified to this office, are given opposite the title of the office and under the appropriate designation, each in its proper column.

INFORMATION TO VOTERS

The following instructions are given for the information and guidance of voters: A voter upon entering the polling place, and giving his name and residence, will receive a ballot from the ballot clerk, which must have endorsed thereon the names or initials of both ballot clerks, and no other ballot can be used. Upon receiving his ballot, the voter must retire alone to a booth or compartment, and prepare the same for voting. A ballot clerk may inform the voter as to the proper manner of marking a ballot, but he must not advise or indicate in any manner whom to vote for. If a voter wishes to vote for some of the candidates of different political parties, he should make a cross mark under the name of each candidate he desires to vote for, or at any place within the space in which the name is printed. If he wishes to vote for a person for a certain office, whose name is not on the ballot, he must write the name in the blank space under the printed name of the candidate for the office. In voting for candidates for county judge or superintendent of schools place a cross at the right of the names for whom you wish to vote, but vote for only one. The ballot should not be marked in any other manner.

If the ballot is spoiled it must be returned to the ballot clerk, who must issue another in its stead, but not more than three in all to any one voter. Five minutes' time is allowed in booth to mark ballot. Unofficial ballots or memoranda to assist the voter in marking his ballot can be taken into the booth and may be used to copy from. The ballot must not be shown so that any person can see how it has been marked by the voter. After it is marked it should be folded so that the inside cannot be seen, but so that the printed endorsements and signatures of the ballot clerks on the outside may be seen. Then the voter should pass out of the booth, or compartment, give his name to the inspector in charge of the ballot box hand him his ballot to be placed in the box and pass out of the voting place. A voter who declares to the presiding officer that he is unable to read, or that by reason of physical disability he is unable to mark his ballot, can have assistance of one or two election officers in marking the same, to be chosen by the voter, and if he declares that he is totally blind he may be assisted by any person chosen by him from among the legal voters of the county. The presiding officer may administer an oath, in his discretion, as to such person's disability. The party designations and candidates for the different offices are, for example, as follows:

MERLIN HULL TAKES PERSONAL OFFENSE AT WHITTET BILL

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., March 21.—Secretary of State Merlin Hull came before the joint committee on education yesterday afternoon to protest against the passage of the Whittet bill for a reorganization of the central board of education. He designated it as a personal slap directed at him. In support of his statement, he exhibited documents and newspaper advertisements showing that during the campaign for the election of the board of education, the Whittet bill was the subject of a personal attack on him. He stated that the bill would mean that he would hold a position on the central board of education.

The hearing at which this statement was made was over the Whittet bill. In appearing for the measure, Whittet offered a substitute which provides that the governor shall appoint five members of a central board of education; that the governor himself shall be a member; that the university and normal school shall each select a representative; and that the state superintendent shall be an ex-officio member of the board. The original bill eliminated the state superintendent and the secretary of state from the board of education. The substitute bill eliminated only the secretary of state.

President Charles Van Hise of the university appeared in favor of the measure. He thinks that the composition of the board by allowing the governor to appoint five members would make it more representative of the interests of the state and that the findings of such a board would be more readily supported by the people. He deplored the fact that the people of the state have a conflict of authority between the educational interests and the board of education.

Van Hise got alone under the old law by mutual tolerance," declared President Van Hise. "If either side had insisted on their rights there would have been a riot."

Van Hise favors Bill. President Van Hise characterized the Whittet bill as one that would bring scientific control to the educational interests of the state. He pointed out that the Whittet measure took control of the educational policies away from the central board of education and made the central board of education in reality a board of estimates.

"This bill is practically a copy of my substitute measure which was offered in 1915 and was defeated," said Senator George Standaever. President Van Hise agreed with him.

Van Hise, representing the Milwaukee Merchants' and Manufacturers' association, and the Wisconsin manufacturers, said these organizations were in the board harmonious with the Whittet bill because this measure would throw out the many differences now existing and would strengthen the educational system of the state.

Mr. Hille said that he represented the interests of the normal schools and that this board was in favor of the Whittet bill. He declared that the provision giving the governor power to appoint five members on a board of nine was just and stated that he believed the administration should have this power.

Hull's Only Opponent. Secretary Merlin Hull was the only one in opposition to the measure. He said that when he was elected to office the people expected him to protect the responsibilities of that office that were in existence at the time of his election. He declared that he would not be removed from the central board of education without a protest.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.
The best thing to use is just plain mulled coconut oil, for this is pure and entirely harmless. It's very cheap, and costs the most expensive soaps or anything else all to pieces.
Get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.
Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

ENTENTE LEGATIONS HOUSED IN OLD BOAT SMALL AND CROWDED

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
On board the Abbassieh off Piraeus, Greece, March 21.—The Abbassieh is the ship which since December 15th, has housed all the Entente Legations accredited to King Constantine, save the Italian mission. A small boat, once a yacht, she is a far from comfortable dwelling for so many diplomats and their families.

The various cabins have signs on them indicating that one or the other is the British Legation, the French Legation, the Serbian Legation, the Russian Legation, the Rumanian Legation. The main saloon at meal time is a common dining room as international in character as that of any Swiss hotel in the tourist season. By dint of long enforced residence at close quarters, some of the little niceties of life have gone by the board. French, the common diplomatic tongue, is here solely the language of the French. Each group sticks together and converses in its native speech, save at the formal conferences.

After the common breakfast, the tables are cleared and the reading of the Athenian morning papers is the order of the day—a task usually falling to Mr. Philidor, the Russian interpreter, the reading, translator and less one, as the Athenian newspapers have little good to say of the Entente Powers these days of blockade. The common breakfast, however, is generally of similar tenor, albeit from the other side. The news of the day digested, there is the first conference and discussion on the day's proceedings. The conference adjourned, the legations separate each to occupy a set of tables of its own for its work—when there is any to do.

The British and French Legations are the busy ones. The Rumanian Minister, almost entirely cut off from his government of whose seat he is never quite sure, is forlorn figure, never quite sure of his own colleagues. The Serbian Minister is somewhat busier, he acts as his own cook. The Serbian Minister, however, is frequently slipping ashore and making his way to Athens, to return only late in the evening, spending the night aboard as a pure matter of form.

At one time Sir Francis Elliot, the British minister in shirt sleeves, is tapping the typewriter, himself, at another one of his secretaries is lost among a mass of papers that with every roll of the ship slip to the floor. Nearby at another table two other British secretaries are playing chess. In a corner, four of the diplomatic ladies have organized a day-long game of bridge. The Belgian charge watches the bridge, sadly, his thoughts far away on the sand dunes that are all that remains of his native land.

On the opposite side of the cabin, Jean Guillemin, the French minister, holds sway. Nervous and restless, he is constantly up and down, rushing back and forth from his cabin or breaking in on his British colleague who listens to comment or discussion impassive, returning to poking one finger of each hand at the typewriter keys when the storm has passed. Capt. de Roqueville, the French naval attaché, hurries in with the latest reports from the Aegean at an owl with the lurid color characteristic of the Orient. The eager French gather about to drink them in, with many "Ohs!" and "Ahs" and "How Dreadfuls!"

Afternoons those who do not sleep go ashore for walks on the island of Salamis, or climb the barren Aegaleos heights.

Every spring he brings the prettiest little girl robin of the whole bunch for his mate, and the spot he has chosen for his home is one of the most beautiful and artistic in all Kansas City. Robbie's advent is looked and hoped for by children and grown-ups for blocks around. He is expected almost any day.
